GILBERT Jordan: Convicted of manslaughter.

Chug-a-lug charmer forces gals to drink until they die, say cops!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Mild-mannered Gilbert Jordan used hard liquor as a murder weapon, say cops — possibly forcing as many as eight women to drink themselves to death.

Unbelievably high amounts of booze were found in bodies of the victims, who were lured to sleazy, skid row hotels or Jordan's barbershop in Vancouver, British Columbia, said the Canadian Crown Prosecutor Sean Madigan.

"He picked them up in downtown bars and forced them to drink, using fear and money as a persuader," Madigan told The NEWS. "He poured and they drank as he watched."

Jordan, 58, was convicted of manslaughter in the death of Vanessa Lee Buckner, 27, whose body contained an incredibly high blood-alcohol reading of .91. He denied blame in her death and pleaded not guilty.

"Seven other women had died in Vancouver in the past 12 years after consuming huge amounts of booze," said Madigan. "Three of them died in Jordan's barbershop and the others in nearby hotels. He is a prime suspect in all of the deaths."

Cops began taking the bitterly looking Jordan after Miss Buckner's death. That may be the only reason alcoholic Rosemary Wilson is alive today.

She met Jordan at a bar and accompanied him to a nearby hotel to drink. Miss Wilson did not know Police Detective Raymond Ferguson was following them. At Jordan's manslaughter trial, she testified:

"He poured me a full glass of vodka in a typical hotel glass. 'Drink it up, it's better that way,' she quoted Jordan as saying.

Miss Wilson said he poured her own portion into a potted plant and after drinking it, she felt as if she was going to pass out.

"I lay down," she testified. "Over came the bottle ... He tried to put the bottle down my throat and kill me ... I tried to push him away."

Det. Ferguson was eavesdropping outside the hotel room door. He heard Jordan offer the woman $20 to drink.

He testified that Jordan also told Miss Wilson:

"Down the hatch ... take those strides. I want to see if you're a real woman."

When the woman began to slur her words, Det. Ferguson quoted Jordan as saying, "I'll give you 50 bucks if you can take it." The detective entered the hotel room and called an ambulance when Miss Wilson began to gag. Lacking sufficient evidence, Ferguson was not arrested, and allowed to leave. Her blood-alcohol level was an amazing .32 when they pumped her stomach at a hospital.

Jordan was later arrested and charged in Miss Buckner's murder after cops had gathered sufficient evidence from the continent surveillance. Additional charges may be filed in the bizarre case.

EIGHT women have died after allegedly being forced to drink huge amounts of liquor by Jordan.

Failure to 'buckle up' in parked car costly!

In a bizarre legal decision, a man whose legs were paralyzed when the parked car he was sitting in was rammed by another car had insurance benefits slashed because he wasn't wearing his seat belt.

The court in Hamm, West Germany, upheld a clause in the insurance policy requiring passengers in parked cars with the motor off to be wearing their belts.

The man was injured while he was waiting in his parked car at a service station. The court denied him an additional $1,700 per day above his normal medical

WOW!!

I'm glad to get this off my chest!

WHAT a relief! Former top-heavy Joyce Hackney shows off the mammoth bra she used to wear. At right, she proudly shows off her new slimmer, trimmer bustline.

By SUSAN SMITH

All her life, Joyce Hackney's biggest burden was carried by her bra — giant, 52-inch breasts that caused her to suffer backaches and unbearable heartache.

Today, thanks to a miracle operation, the 41-year-old woman of Derby, England, can breathe a sigh of relief without bursting her buttons. Doctors have trimmed 14 inches off her bustline and given her a normal life at last.

"I don't know where to begin, but I'm looking forward to it," Joyce said of her new, lighter life-style. "For nearly 30 years I had to put up with discomfort, distress, inconvenience and the knowledge that I hardly ever looked as though I was properly dressed.

Joyce's bust balloonism began when she was just 11 and her chest began to grow and GROW! Within months the poor girl measured 36 inches and there was no sign the breast boom would go bust.

Sure enough, Joyce blew up to an incredible 52 inches around her chest — a size so unusual she had to have specially made heavy duty bras to support her figure.

Ordinary activities like dancing and sports were agony to her. She couldn't find clothes that was stylish and attractive.

"Clothes for a tall girl were hard enough to find — but slims clothes for someone whose bust was nearer her waist than her shoulders"

Docs take an incredible 14 inches off her 52-inch bust

Joyce recalled. "And having ever-large breasts is agony in other ways.

"It's being unable to turn over in bed because you have to lift your bust first. It's putting up with sores where the bra digs in. And it means above all not being taken seriously by men."

Finally, after Joyce's bust problems had given her years of physical and emotional pain, help finally came. She appeared on a television program about plastic surgery and a top London surgeon offered to reduce her ballooned breasts.

In surgery, the lower half of each breast was removed and the top was reshaped. After the operation, Joyce measures a slim, trim 38.

"Doctors told me breast reductions of this magnitude are rare," joyful Joyce told The NEWS. "At last I feel like a

The joke's on bank prankster

Unsuspecting Louise Hadgeley thought she was taking the day's deposit to the bank, but a prankster had put a "stick up" note in the envelope — and she was dragged off to the slammer.

A terrified bank clerk pressed the secret alarm when she opened the envelope and read a note saying, "This is an armed raid — hand over the money."

A co-worker had played a trick on Louise by writing the note.

He was fired by the boss at the beauty salon in High Wycombe, England. The boss wasn't amused.

Louise, 18, was so shaken by her brush with the law she needed two days off work to recover.

A modern medical miracle stuns delivery room!

VIRGIN BIRTH SHOCKER!

By SUSAN JIMISON

A 15-year-old virgin stunned doctors and made medical history when she gave birth to a healthy baby — without ever having had intercourse!

According to an article about the bizarre birth published in the British Journal of Obstetrics and Gynecology, the new mom has no vagina and could not make love normally.

The authors of the startling medical story described a bizarre series of events leading up to the one-in-a-billion pregnancy, and their explanation has been readily accepted by colleagues.

"The Journal is a reputable one and although this is extraordinary, almost anything is possible in the medical world," said Professor Ian Craft of the Hamms Hospital in London after learning of the incredible birth.

According to the description of the case, the young Lesotho, South Africa, mother had no idea she was pregnant until she began suffering from stomach pains and was taken to a hospital.

There, doctors discovered she was in labor — although she had severe abnormalities that would have made sex and intercourse impossible. After delivering the baby by cesarean section and questioning the young mother carefully, doctors developed an explanation of the rare pregnancy.

The woman told them she had been mailed by a jealous ex-lover nine months before. She said she had been with her new boyfriend and had just finished having oral sex.

The former lover's knife slashed into her stomach and doctors believe the sperm she had swallowed spread through her abdomen where the stab wound was treated.

"Sperm must have been flushed out of the stomach, up the fallopian tubes and into the womb," said one doctor. "The baby resembles his father, which excludes an even more miraculous conception.

"This is the most bizarre medical event I've ever witnessed," the doctor said.

The young mother and her baby are living with the baby's father and both are perfectly healthy, the article said.

"This is a remarkable event," commented David Pearce, editor of the Journal. "It is unique as far as I know."

Astrologer's incredible prediction

Prince Charles will NEVER be King!

By JOE STOCKER

Prince Charles was born to be King of England — but the fickle prince will never take the throne!

That's the shocking conclusion of the world's top astrologers, who see a stormy, startling future for the controversial heir apparent.

"There is nothing in the stars to indicate that Prince Charles will ever become king," says The NEWS own renowned astrologer, Countess Sophia Saheb.

"On the other hand, there is every sign that his climb to the throne will be derailed — perhaps very dramatically."

The countess said many fellow psychics and stargazers have reached the same staggering conclusion about Charles' future but have been reluctant to voice their opinion in public.

"No one can say for certain that the prince won't meet some violent end, but no one wants to suggest such a terrible thing," she said.

"There are so many uncertainties when you analyze his chart that most people have chosen to just keep quiet about what they see.

"It is very clear, however, that Charles is doomed to lead a troubled life."

If tragedy doesn't befall the prince, there is a strong possibility that he will step aside to pursue personal goals, the countess said.

"Charles is a moody, idealistic man with a wide variety of interests in such things as the arts and the supernatural," she said.

"He may just decide that he'll have a better chance at accomplishing his personal goals if he doesn't have to worry about serving as king."

The countess said she also can't rule out the possibility that Charles' stormy marriage to Princess Di will crumble and that he'll give up the throne to marry a commoner.

"The possibilities, based upon his chart, are almost endless," the astrologer said.

"About the only certainty is that

ASTROLOGERS say we will never see Prince Charles sitting on the throne of England. Instead, the stars predict a troubled future for the controversial heir.

Men who talk about themselves have twice as many heart attacks

Men whose favorite subjects are "I, me and my" are twice as likely to have heart attacks!

"If the conversational subject closest to your heart is primarily you, your heart may be in danger," says Dr. Larry Scherwitz, a psychologist at the University of California.

Dr. Scherwitz spent 10 years studying 150 men who suffered heart attacks and comparing them with 384 other men who had similar social and educational backgrounds, but who time used the words "I, me and my" at least 104 times during a 15-minute conversation about themselves. The healthy men used the words much less than 100 times during similar conversations.

A complicated computer analysis showed that the egotists had twice as much risk of heart attacks.

The best way for them to reduce their risk of heart attacks is to fall in love, says Dr. Scherwitz.

Author says Presley's brother did not die at birth!

Elvis had a twin — and he's still alive!

By SUSAN JAMISON

The mystery man spotted by Elvis fans in thousands of sightings around the country may not be The King after all, says a California woman who knew Elvis well — it may be his twin brother Jesse!

Although Jesse was reported to have died at birth, author Laurel King, 38, says she met him several times at Graceland in 1973. He's a dead ringer for Elvis, she said, although he didn't have the magnetic personality of the rock 'n' roll star.

"Jesse was shy, like a child," recalled Laurel, who is writing a book called Jesse about her meetings with the twin.

"He didn't seem to have the intelligence that Elvis had," she said.

"And there were other differences, too. He was afraid of horses, for instance, and Elvis loved them. He wasn't at all athletic and Elvis was. But he looked just like Elvis did in those days."

She believes that Jesse was born mentally retarded and hidden by the Presley family at the home of an aunt. That is what both Elvis and Jesse told her at Graceland years ago, she says.

Laurel, who now lives in Los Angeles, met Elvis initially through the famous singer's friend and band member, Charlie Hodge. At the time she was working in Memphis in the music business. One night she attended a party at Graceland with Charlie Hodge and got into a conversation with Elvis.

"We started talking about twins," Laurel said. "Elvis was obsessed with the subject. I gave him a book on twins later on.

"I went back for many visits [illegible] someone who would say he was Jesse. I'd speak to him and call him Elvis and he'd say, 'No, I'm Jesse.'"

Laurel believes it's possible that Jesse left Graceland when Elvis died in 1977 and went into hiding.

Recently he left seclusion and began to live more normally, she thinks.

Soon Elvis fans all over the country began to report they'd seen The King.

The Elvis look-alike was spotted in Kalamazoo, Mich., in Las Vegas, at an auto race in Minnesota, and scores of other places.

The sightings aroused intense interest and started rumors that Elvis was alive and had only faked his death.

But the real truth is that the mystery man is Jesse, Laurel says.

"That would explain, I think, why so many people see Elvis or think they see Elvis in different parts of the nation," she said.

"It's very possible that Elvis' twin brother, Jesse, who supposedly died at birth, did

X-rated robbers rip off fertility god

A prankster has stripped a statue of the Greek god of fertility of its most important asset — a detachable, 10-inch part.

The life-size carving of Priapus was on display at an adults only art show in London. The vital organ was detachable so it wouldn't snap in transit. Cops said the prankster simply unscrewed the offending item and walked off with it.

"The theft is unfortunate but it means a significant part of the arts exhibition is missing," said an arts show official.

Sculptor Philip Core is furiously working on a replacement part so Priapus can be whole again.

Mom wants to sell kidney!

She needs cash to care for her sick daughter

Worried mom Helga Eberoldt would give anything to ensure that her daughter lives a happy life — even if it means selling parts of her own body!

By SUSAN JAMESON

The 46-year-old woman has offered to sell one of her kidneys so that her daughter Sabine, 21, can be treated for epilepsy and be cared for after she and her husband are dead and buried.

"My daughter is very sick and with the money I could earn selling my kidney I could offer her a more certain future," the sad-eyed mom from Saarbrucken, East Germany, told reporters. "My daughter can't work. Her treatment and her pills are completely our responsibility. But we're just ordinary folks. What we earn, my husband and I, is barely enough to survive on.

"Up to now, because of tremendous sacrifices, we have managed to take care of her. But we can't live forever. When we're no longer here, who's going to take care of Sabine?"

Helga said she and her husband were at their wit's end with worry over how to provide for their ailing daughter. Then a scandal that hit the East German organ transplant clinics gave them an idea. Newspapers were full of stories of people who had sold kidneys and eyes for enormous sums. The practice was quickly outlawed in their country — but Helga thought she could make her fortune anyway by selling a kidney in Italy.

The desperate woman wrote a letter to the Milan newspaper Corriere della Sera describing her plight and offering the organ for sale to the highest bidder. Her heart-wrenching plea made her famous overnight — and quickly put an end to her dream of sacrificing her body parts to support her epileptic daughter.

"I didn't want all this publicity," the woman told reporters who rushed to interview her.

"I wrote an Italian paper because I thought in that country it was possible to sell human organs. But I was terribly wrong. My letter touched off a storm of events that made it impossible for me to sell my kidney. Now I don't know where to turn."

Helga says she's had offers of help from generous strangers, but she's worried it will take a very large sum indeed to provide for disabled Sabine. She says she wants no more publicity and won't permit photographs of her daughter.

"We've done everything we could think of and now there's nothing more we can do," she said sadly. "For us, this whole thing is a nightmare.

"I'm desperate. I'm always thinking about the future, about the day Sabine will be alone. That was the reason I wanted to sell my kidney — I wanted to leave her an income so she'd be all right when we're no longer here to protect her."

DESPERATE Helga Eberoldt doesn't know where to turn now to raise the money to provide for her epileptic daughter, after learning that Italy won't allow her to sell one of her kidneys.

How to make $6 on a $5 bill

Sales of dangerous crack cocaine are so brisk in certain sections of New York City that even legitimate businesses are making a hefty profit from the sleazy trade.

It seems that drug dealers will only accept a $5 bill for a dose of crack. Ones would be too bulky for such a thriving trade, the peddlers explain.

So, salesmen, candy stores and other retail firms located in the drug-plagued areas are selling the $5 bills for six $1 bills. That adds up to a whopping no-risk profit of 20 percent.

Husband and wife meet head-on in 2-car crunch

STILL PALS — Kenneth and Nancy like to show there's no hard feelings.

By SUSAN JAMISON

Postman Kenneth Wiggins was rushing to work one morning when he met his wife Nancy — head-on!

The Belmont, Ohio, couple slammed into one another as they came from opposite directions through a dip in the road. Both were hospitalized after the accident.

"One was on the way to work and one was coming home from work," said Lt. Neil Sanders, Commander of the Highway Patrol post at St. Clairsville, Ohio. "It was an unscheduled meeting."

Nancy Wiggins said she was returning home from her job as a nurse's aide, traveling at about 30 m.p.h. when the mishap took place.

As her 1977 Malibu rose out of a dip in the one-lane dirt road, Nancy saw her husband's 1977 Lincoln rushing toward her at 30 m.p.h.

"I knew who I was hitting," Nancy, 41, told The NEWS.

"But there was no time to think — just about 10 seconds until the impact.

"We were out on a rural road. After we hit, we couldn't breathe too good because we slammed into the steering column. My husband reversed first and went a half mile for help. A farmer's wife came to get me and we called an ambulance."

Nancy and her husband wound up in the same hospital room to recover from their similar injuries. Kenneth received a bruised heart, cuts and bruises, broken ribs and two black eyes. Nancy had a bruised liver, broken ribs and cuts and bruises.

After eight days in the hospital the couple, parents of two sons, went home to recuperate.

"Both our cars were totaled and we're hoping the insurance will cover the loss. Police said my husband was in the wrong lane, but I don't think the accident was his fault. I don't know how you can be in the wrong lane on a one-lane dirt road," said Nancy.

ROOMMATES — Kenneth and Nancy Wiggins ended up in same hospital room after their collision.

THEY'RE COMING!

Space alien invasion only 3 years away, says top UFO expert

By RAGAN DUNN

A Kansas housewife who claims to meet with space aliens almost every day says the creatures will soon reveal themselves in public for everyone to see!

And a top UFO researcher, who is also a medical doctor, says the meetings between the aliens and homemaker Donna Hutts, 38, of Russell, Kans., are for real.

She says a space creature named Ceghis first appeared in her basement four years ago in 1984.

Since then she has been in almost constant contact with Ceghis and other aliens, who allegedly told her that mankind is now almost advanced enough to meet with representatives from an extraterrestrial civilization.

They said they have been monitoring our evolution and development since human beings began like parents watching their children grow.

"The exact date of the aliens' disclosure hasn't been set, but it will be soon — probably within three years," said Mrs. Hutts.

"The aliens have an important message that will permanently affect our future.

"When they do come a whole new era in our history will begin."

Mrs. Hutts' story, though fantastic, has found an ardent supporter in Dr. Scott Corder. The family practitioner and UFO researcher from Ottawa, Kans., has interviewed the woman extensively.

And he is convinced that she is telling the truth about her UFO experiences.

"I ran a complete background check. I talked to Mrs. Hutts and I am convinced that she is telling the truth," said the physician.

"I also believe that what she has to tell us is very important. These aliens could change life as we know it. They're going to have an impact on the future of all mankind."

According to Mrs. Hutts the extraterrestrials have selected four people to help prepare for their arrival on Earth within the next few years. She says that these contacts, including herself, were genetically altered by the aliens while they were still in the womb.

The unsung alterations makes them receptive to the aliens' speech and messages, Mrs. Hutts said.

"Right now the aliens are giving us information which we send to prominent doctors, scientists and government officials around the world," she continued. "I can't reveal the nature of the information at this time.

"But I can tell you that it is heading up to a meeting of the aliens and world governments. After that, the aliens will make themselves known to the world."

Mrs. Hutts says she communicates with the extraterrestrials in her home, telepathically and even aboard a spaceship. The creatures appear to her in human form and come from a planet in the M-31 galaxy, she said.

"The aliens teleport themselves to Earth or teleport me up to them," she continued. "I usually meet with Ceghis, who is tall with blond hair and blue eyes. But then sometimes I see smaller, childlike androids instead.

"I talk to them in English, but the aliens communicate among themselves mathematically and with musical tones. They told me they have been monitoring human beings for all of history — and now it is almost time for them to intervene."

BELIEVER — Dr. Scott Corder supports the bizarre claim of Kansas housewife Donna Hutts.

Landlord wants to grab $75G couple found in rented house

By JACK ALEXANDER

Conscience kept honest Ken Lain from keeping $75,300 he found in a home he rents, but now his landlord claims the money is his — just because he owns the house.

Straight-arrow Ken had turned the treasure over to cops, who said he would get the money if the owner didn't claim it within 30 days.

Investigators contacted previous owners and renters of the Tempe, Ariz., house, but nobody seemed to know where the money came from.

Then landlord Gust Nicandros of Orinda Village, Calif., filed a claim with police, saying the money belonged to him because it was fraudulent his property.

"We can live on the money, but we couldn't have felt right about keeping it," said Ken's wife Lisa. "We have a 3-month-old baby and we're saving for a house."

Judge officials have asked the Maricopa County Superior Court in Mesa to decide who should get the money.

The 23-year-old credit investigator discovered the cash in a plastic and white bag stashed in an air-conditioning vent while spraying for cockroaches.

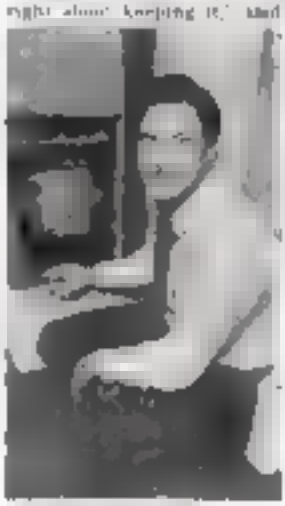
"I thought it was a bag of toys while children. And felt because it was quite heavy," Ken said.

But it was crammed with bills — tens, twenties, fifties and hundreds.

Lisa said her husband decided almost immediately to call police.

"We'll probably never see that much money ever again, but we wouldn't have felt right about keeping it," she said. "It wasn't our money."

The couple don't look for court battle over the money. That's what's going to happen with our landlord," she said. "If the court decides he will have to keep on saving for our dream house."



HONEST Ken Lain shows where loot was stashed.

A judge will decide if Lisa and Ken Lain will be able to keep the money they found.

Tipsy burglar gets stuck in ceiling hole

Bumbling burglar Lawrence Sansone broke into a liquor store and downed a $17 bottle of champagne — then got stuck in the ceiling trying to make his getaway.

The chubby crook got caught in a hole in the ceiling when his leg became wedged between two beams — and he stayed there till police came to his rescue.

"They (cops) could hear his muffled cry from the attic," said Kaufman, Twp., prosecutor Diana Bull. "He was saying, 'I'm stuck! I'm stuck!'"

Store manager Don Fiddler said Sansone, 21, had polished off a bottle of Dom Perignon, the most expensive booze in the store.

Phone message shocker!

A man raced home after getting a grim message on his office answering machine and found his wife and their two children dead.

Authorities in Birmingham, Ala., said Debra Sue Humphrey, 36, called her husband, William at work and left a message instructing him to call the police and to come home.

Sheriff's Sgt. Eddie White said Humphrey rushed home to find that his wife had shot their 8-year-old son and 5-year-old daughter to death before killing herself.

I LIVED WITH STEVE McQUEEN'S SPIRIT!

MOVIE LEGEND Steve McQueen died of cancer in 1980, but now a woman claims his friendly spirit haunts his old California ranch.

In an incredible tale from beyond the grave, a lady pilot who now owns Steve McQueen's old ranch says the superstar's spirit lived with her there for five years.

Even more astounding, Christina Stevens claims Steve's spirit saved her from dying in a mangling car wreck. She was driving down a winding country road in the dead of night when a voice out of nowhere spoke to her.

"I heard a voice tell me, 'Put your seat belt on,'" she recalls.

"I did and then the car hit a bend and went through a fence of barbed wire, over boulders and into a ravine. I shouldn't have survived. I visited psychics and they told me the voice was the spirit of Steve McQueen."

Christina's communication with the late-superstar's haunting spirit began with dreams.

"He would visit me in my dreams. And other people who knew me would say they had strange dreams in which Steve McQueen appeared with a message for me," she said.

Later, through a strange set of circumstances Christina bought Steve's Santa Paula, Calif., ranch in 1981 and it changed her life.

LOVEBIRDS Princess Stephanie and beau Ron Bloom

Rainier gives Steph okay to wed Yank!

Monaco's perky Princess Stephanie has gotten the green light from her strict papa Prince Rainier to wed Yank beau hunky Ron Bloom.

Rainier's permission for the Prince was dead set against Ron at first, but after meeting the long-haired, leather-wearing beau, the royal dad changed his mind.

"At first Rainier thought Bloom was just another of Stephanie's freaky boyfriends," says a source.

"But he talked to the man, and after a private two-hour chat, the two emerged arm in arm.

GARLIC

CAN HELP YOU LIVE TO BE 100!

By BEATRICE DEXTER

Want to live to be 100? You can do it, a new study shows — simply by eating garlic every day!

According to a survey of 50 people who lived to be 100 or more, eating strong, smelly garlic is the key to a long life. Indian nutritionist Dr. Lal Narain of New Delhi's College of Public Health found that 80 percent of the oldsters ate at least a clove of the stinky stuff a day and some ate much more.

"The garlic was the only thing these people had in common," Dr. Narain wrote in the Indian Journal of Nutrition.

Even though garlic is a common spice in our country, it appears those old people ate more than the rest of the population, simply because they loved the taste and included it in every meal. Otherwise they had widely different backgrounds, diets and life-styles.

From my study I conclude that 800 milligrams of garlic — the amount found in a clove or two, or an pills sold in health food stores — can improve chances of longevity remarkably.

Scientists have known for some time now that garlic has health benefits far beyond its flavoring properties. Both Hippocrates and Pliny the Elder, ancient Greek and Roman physicians, prescribed garlic for a variety of ailments.

Research completed over the past few years has demonstrated that garlic prevents blood clots by thinning the blood, that it lowers cholesterol, cures the common cold and relieves some common asthma. The herb is also known to fight infection, stimulate the immune system and help prevent the onset of cancer.

In his research review Dr. Narain theorizes that the combined health effects of garlic protect garlic eaters from most of the diseases associated with old age. Heart attack, stroke, lung infection, cancers — all these have been proven to be affected by garlic in the diet. The list could go on. So many individuals who eat garlic regularly are taking a daily preventative that assures they will survive to a healthy old age. The herb is cheap, readily available and tasty. It is a common ingredient in the foods of most cultures. Research clearly indicates that we should encourage the consumption of garlic on a daily basis if we want to protect the public from premature death," Narain said in the report, he added.

The old folks he studied were unfailingly enthusiastic about their favorite herb.

"Every time I eat raw garlic, I feel like a teenager again," one old man told the researcher. "I'll give me a lift. I scare and I don't sleep enough, but as long as I have my garlic I feel fine. It's helped me live to be 100 and I guess it'll help me go until the end, but a while yet."

The only regret I have is that I never ate garlic as a kid, but we didn't know then what we know now," he added.

Drugbusters left holding bag of flour!

Drug agents thought they had a million-dollar drug bust lined up, but the white stuff they confiscated was for cooking, not snorting.

After they arrested an elderly man who allegedly had tried to sell them a huge bag of "cocaine," flour and sugar instead of drugs. The 73-year-old suspect was so shocked to learn he'd been caught that he had an cardiac attack and went to the hospital with severe chest pains.

Instead of 1.8 million dollars worth of illegal drugs, authorities are stuck with an angry arrestee.

The cops say they will file charges against the would-be customer for attempting to buy cocaine.

Cupid scores bullseye as sailor gets million-to-one love letter

By DICK DONOVAN

Jana VanZile says a pen-pal letter she sent to "any sailor serving in the Persian Gulf" must have been delivered by Cupid — it sparked a year-long romance and a proposal of marriage!

And while they haven't yet set the date, 23-year-old Jana and her pen-pal fiancé, Petty Officer Stephen Woodbury, are looking forward to that happy day, when they can make their trip down the aisle to the altar.

"I wasn't looking for a husband or anything like that when I sent the letter," Jana told The NEWS. "I just wanted to do something nice for one of our servicemen in the Persian Gulf.

"I didn't know what to send it to so I just addressed it to anyone serving in the Persian Gulf and Woody was the one who got it.

Her husband-to-be was serving aboard the Cumberland Pamanint USS Duluth when Jana's letter arrived along with hundreds of others sent in response to an appeal by a radio station in Traverse City, Mich.

"We got the letters mostly from grade school and high school kids," said the groom-to-be.

"They were great and did a lot to cheer us up.

"I was feeling kind of lonely and one of my shipmates said, 'Hey, Woody. Here's a letter from a girl who may want to get married. Take a look at it.' I read it and finally answered it a couple of weeks later. The next thing you know we're writing, two three times a day."

After several months of hot and heavy letter writing, Woody came back to the States and took a two-week leave.

At last, they had a chance to meet face to face.

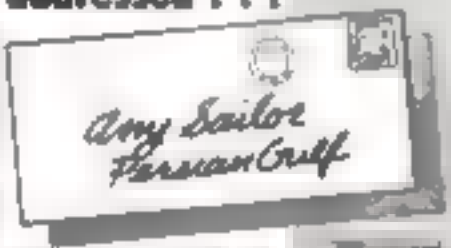
"It was love at first sight," Jana gushed. But Woody was not so sure.

"I really wanted to be certain," he explained. "Marriage is forever. I thought it over for a few weeks, then I wrote Jana and asked her to be my wife.

"When I got her reply, all she wrote was, 'Yes! Yes! Yes! Yes! Yes!'"

Jana left her home in Traverse City to live in Virginia Beach, Va., to be near Woody, who's now stationed aboard the USS Mount Whitney.

He popped the question after he got the envelope addressed . . .



Wedding bells will soon ring for Jana VanZile and her sailor fiancé, Stephen Woodbury.

Paws tell tale of kitty horror

Cops knew heartless catnappers were on the prowl when they made a gruesome discovery at a trash pile — 400 cat paws.

Cat owners in England and Wales were warned to keep their pets indoors at night so that they wouldn't fall prey to hairdressers who want their pelts for toys and fur coats.

Thousands of felines have been reported missing and suspicious vans stacked with caged cats have been sighted.

"In many parts of the country, cat theft has become an organized crime on a massive scale," said Joan Wargo of the National Petwatch group in London.

"It's a vicious crime that must be stopped."

Scientific breakthrough — pop-off orange peels

Scientists have come up with yet another way to make life in the kitchen easier — they've developed a way to make oranges and grapefruit practically pop out of their skins!

The quick strip job is accomplished by giving the fruit a dose of an enzyme — pectinase — which dissolves the albedo that white, bitter tissue that holds the skin to the fruit.

12-year-old daddy is sued for child support

Wisconsin wants him to pay [illegible]

By PETE COOKE

A 12-year-old boy who was sexually assaulted by a woman is now being hit for child support for her baby, say stunned attorneys in the bizarre case.

"We did get the state to agree that they wouldn't take his piggy bank for child support," said Leonard Kerkvliet, a Neenah, Wis., lawyer who represents the boy.

Kerkvliet said his client "was definitely the victim of a sexual assault" in the boy's loft of his parents farm. The sexual assault [illegible] assault on the eighth grader was committed by an 18-year-old woman who apparently was a friend of the boy's older sister the attorney told The NEWS.

"The woman was [illegible] really go to jail because [illegible] but got a deferred [illegible] prosecution agreement that authorities on the condition that she stay away from the boy," said Robert Sedak, an Appleton attorney representing the boy's parents.

Lawyers on the case said the woman got pregnant and gave birth to a baby girl. A paternity test proved that 12-year-old was the baby's father.

Under Wisconsin law, officials were required to seek support payments from the boy and his parents after the baby mother applied for state child welfare funds.

"There is an ability-to-pay test under the law and the boy's parents simply can't pay," Sedak said.

"We're talking about a farm family that was hit extremely hard by the disastrous summer drought."

The boy had to submit his own financial statement to the judge in the case.

"His financial statement had a total of zero on it," said Kerkvliet. [illegible] dismiss the boy's court-appointed lawyer [illegible] he has no assets he wasn't ordered to make child support payments for the present.

That could change however, when he starts working," the lawyer added.

Mysteriously, said the young couple is living with her parents. The little boy "has never seen his baby and has no desire to do so," the attorney said.

Hubby failed to [illegible] wife, say in-laws!

The parents of Cynthia Weathers are suing their son-in-law, charging he caused Cynthia's death because he didn't stop her from killing herself with a drug overdose.

Paul and Patricia Pugh of Tulsa, Okla., are seeking $1,000,000 in damages from David Weathers, claiming he was negligent in his duty to protect his wife and in failing to warn her parents of her drug problem.

Weathers would not comment on the lawsuit other than to state that he was aware only that his wife had been taking medication to relieve severe headaches.

Cynthia, 32, a veterinarian practicing in North Carolina, apparently had become addicted to Demerol, a painkiller, that although she was hospitalized in 1983 with a drug overdose, her parents were never notified of the reason she was ill, according to Chuck Pearson, a private investigator hired by the Pughs.

When she was found dead in her home in 1984, Cynthia's body had needle marks on it and there was a lethal amount of Demerol in her blood stream, the detectives said.

"The Pughs just feel like something should have been done," he said. "They got hold of [illegible] know she had this drug

Meet the Mutt & Jeff twins

By JOE BERGER

At first glance, you can't help but think of the comic strip characters Mutt and Jeff. But lanky Mike Hembery-Bolton and his tall and lanky pal Malcolm aren't funny-paper sidekicks — they're real-life twin brothers!

Man Mike measures a foot tall on his tiptoes, is officially listed as Britain's tallest guy. At 8 feet, roughly Malcolm towers over his shorter brother like an oak tree.

But ironically it's the Tom Thumb twin who's really shooting up in the world.

While Malcolm suffers the life of a big-layed civil servant in Southampton, pal Mike's fast becoming a big-time movie star.

The swordfight he's had roles in Star Wars and the fantasy film Labyrinth with David Bowie — and he reportedly went on location around the world filming the new George Lucas spook flick Willow.

And while big Malcolm is wondering where his next date is coming from, little Mike is splashing around in curvy cutie more than a foot taller than he is.

"Mike's been getting all the girls all the breaks as I can remember," Malcolm grumbled good naturedly.

"He's not the lucky brother and Dusty can tell you.

"He's out there showing the world what he's made of."

Shoot me, he tells his pal — and his buddy does, police say

By JACK ALEXANDER

Instead of talking his lifelong friend out of suicide, cops said Dennis Harwood Jr. fired the deadly shotgun blast that put his pal out of his misery.

Harwood, 24, was jailed on a murder charge in the bizarre death of Jack Mann Jr., who was found in the mouth in his Sandcastle Beach apartment.

The victim put the barrel of the 20-gauge shotgun in his mouth and his buddy Harwood pulled the trigger," said prosecutor Dale Crowley.

A witness to the shooting, Dana Myers, 20, told police Mann was despondent and wanted to end his life.

The three young men had been drinking for hours when Mann began talking about suicide and grabbed the gun, said Crowley.

"Let me do it!" Harwood allegedly said. And Mann replied, "No, stupid," sparking a philosophical debate.

"Some of us said it would take about 30 seconds," said Myers. "It was all quiet until the gun went off."

Mann, 24, had threatened suicide in the past.

"We were aware of that through our investigation," said Seaside Police Chief Kevin Hostin.

"It was just depression. Things weren't going well. He'd been having some personal problems."

Myers said he tried to talk Mann out of it. "I figured if somebody's got a loaded gun, you don't wrestle over it and try to pull it away."

The victim's sister Thelma Harwood said her son went off when he tried to grab at Jack Mann.

Harwood was charged with murder and lodged in the Barry County Jail on $100,000 bond.

Jailbird groom escapes when cuffs removed for wedding pix!

By PETE COOKE

Trusting guards at an inmate's wedding removed the prisoner's handcuffs so he could pose for pictures with his bride — but instead the man bolted for the door and escaped!

Authorities in Warrington, England, said 28-year old David Roache had been behind bars awaiting trial on robbery charges when he got permission to marry his girlfriend, Gail Dillon.

Handcuffed to a pair of burly prison guards, Roache was taken to city hall where the civil wedding ceremony was performed.

After Roache and the bar maid exchanged vows, the groom and guards pleaded with guards to take off the handcuffs before wedding pictures were snapped.

But when the cuffs were finally agreed and unlocked Roache's cuffs, the groom dashed out the door. As the stunned guards started after Roache, wedding guests crowded out in front of the door to block their way.

The last the guards saw of Roache, he was speeding away in a car decorated for the honeymoon.

When authorities later went to question Roache's bride, they discovered that she and their 18-month-old daughter were also missing.

Avalanche of logs kills boy

An avalanche of pine logs tumbled from a truck onto an 11-year-old boy walking home on a road, killing him and flattening a car filled with teenagers "like a pancake."

Police in Cedar Bluff, Ala., said the horrible accident occurred when a truck heavily loaded with pine logs slammed into the back of a car carrying four teenagers. The truck overturned, sending its huge load of logs onto 11-year-old Cory Lamar Morrison and his friend Danny Joe Segers, who happened to be walking past. Cory was buried and killed, while Danny Joe managed to roll into a ditch and escape. He still suffered severe head injuries.

The car carrying the teenagers was flattened by logs, police said, but the four inside escaped with only slight injuries.

Wonder mom has 2 babies — in only 7½ months!

By CHERYL FOX

Pretty Suzanne Joslin had two babies in 7½ months — and they're not twins!

Incredibly, Suzanne was once told by doctors that she'd probably never be a mom.

"Boy, were they ever wrong," she laughs.

Suzanne, a 27-year-old housewife has stunned those know-it-all docs by producing two offspring in less than eight months.

"Both my babies are healthy and, naturally, I'm as thrilled as can be," she said.

"It's been a terrific experience — but a bit worrying, too. I feel like I've been trapped on a merry-go-round — and it's time to get off for a while.

"I need to take a breather now from being a baby machine."

As for the proud pop, Chris, 30, he said he's spent the last year or so "in a constant state of shock." In March, the Rancho Cucamonga, Calif., couple became parents of a boy, Matt, who was born prematurely and weighed in at 4 pounds, 14 ounces.

Then, in November, just 226 days later, along came 5-pound, 4-ounce daughter Sally. According to doctors, a woman normally carries a baby for 280 days — and it's "extremely rare" to give birth to two children in the short period of time.

Incredibly, the Joslins also have a 3-year-old daughter, Ann Marie. She, too, was a premie.

Doctors had warned Suzanne when she was 13 that her womb was too small for her to have any children. They even suggested she have a hysterectomy.

"Thank heavens my parents said I decided to let children take its course," she said.

"I'm so happy about my two beautiful babies."

Now I'm taking a breather from being a baby machine, says happy housewife

VICTIM: Brian Dickerson met the most horrible death imaginable.

Trash can becomes cripple's coffin

Somebody stuffed him in the garbage and left him to die!

By JACK ALEXANDER

Frail cripple Brian Dickerson died of suffocation when he was stuffed headfirst into a trash can — and couldn't get out.

Cops believe a cruel prankster may have crammed Dickerson, 21, into the wall trash container at a library restroom in Santa Fe Springs, Calif. He couldn't free himself.

"The poor man was just too handicapped physically to work his way out of the fix he was in," said Los Angeles deputy Sgt. Andrew Finnigan.

Dickerson, only 3-foot-3 and 100 pounds, was alive when placed in the can, which Sgt. Finnigan said was about 3½-feet deep and filled with soiled paper towels.

"He may have inadvertently attracted someone and their just walked away," Finnigan said. "Maybe he was wedged in real tight, but they probably had no idea he couldn't get out."

The quiet, well-liked cripple had gone to the library about 20 minutes before his body was found by a janitor.

"Autopsy probably wasn't the positive because he never carried much money," said Sgt. Finnigan. "His body was bruised as though he had been beaten." Dickerson had suffered from several physical problems throughout his life, including bone disease and numerous birth defects that required corrective surgery.

Despite his handicap, Dickerson graduated from high school and worked hard to overcome his difficulties.

Prevent colds — with soap and water

Washing your hands may be the simplest way to avoid a common cold, say medical experts.

More than 200 viruses are waiting to infect millions of Americans and about half of them live in the nose, causing coughing, sneezing and loosing out of mucus.

Hand-to-hand contact with an infected person is a major way of catching a cold, according to experts at the Atlanta-based Centers for Disease Control.

"Your hand becomes contaminated and you become infected by touching your eyes or nose," he said.

Washing your hands is one of the most practical things people can do to avoid catching a cold, said Dr. Anderson.

Humongous hopper trains for [redacted] of World Records by eating [redacted] mice a week

By JOE BERGER

A whopping world record toad named El Paso is working down from crickets and mice like there's no tomorrow. He's at least after it because the biggest toad who ever lived.

"If I can get him to grow another half inch, I'll get him in the Guinness Book of World Records," said proud owner Jay Jacobs, who runs a reptile shop in Philadelphia, Pa.

Guinness's El Paso at 5 years old at nearly recognized as a mighty long climb for now in the land of his years and weighs in at 6½ pounds.

Jacobs says a long-ear toad known only as Toad 9 holds the current world record at 9½ inches and 10 pounds.

Jacobs says El Paso is on a special supplier. The crown that he's gobbling 40 mice and 100 crickets dusted with protein powder every week.

"He is on a high-protein diet that I hope will blow the doors off the record," Jacobs said.

"He'll have to be the world's biggest!"

THIS is how Bigfoot women really look

. . . says anthropologist

A male Bigfoot is the very pinnacle of God's creation and the females are absolutely ravishing!

That's the amazing claim of Japanese anthropologist Michiko Okada, 36, of Osaka, Japan, who has studied the Bigfoot phenomenon in Tibet, Canada, China and in her native country.

Speaking to a group of fellow anthropologists in Bern, Switzerland, the prize-winning Miss Okada said she had studied thousands of Bigfoot pictures before coming face-to-face with "a hairier saltwater group" of the creatures in 1984.

By CHARLES TULLY

Professor Okada said she and the group "on several occasions" among the foothills of the 24,784-foot Rolo Range, peak near the city of Pemakko on the Tibet-Bhutan border, north of India.

During Miss Okada's 40-minute lecture, the people that drew most interest (since her capacity audience were Ooga

● The Bigfoot is extraterrestrial in origin and may have come to Earth as late as 1904, with the several U.S. the most probable landing site.

● Despite the generally ugliness of the creatures, both males and females have coarse body hair. The males stand 9 feet tall on average and the females are proud of their shorter.

● Both males and females are primarily perfect. Like dark gods and goddesses, prowling in New Guinea and the females are full-bosomed, rear-mounted 36-30-36s and beautiful and love to adorn themselves in "barbaric gold, silver, jewels."

● Through sign language and touch drawings on a piece of slate the Bigfoot indicated their home planet has revised our own solar system. They used signs for the sun, a probable star, indicating it was the eighth of nine planets. It was about the size of the giant planets and was about one-third of the way from the sun.

Gay jailbirds plead: PLEASE Judge, we want to get married!

TODD REED

PHILLIP SHROYER

By PATRICK DOYLE

Jail cell sweethearts Todd Reed and Phillip Shroyer want to make their love affair legal — so they asked a judge for permission to get married.

But Judge Jeff Boles of Danville, Ind., then ruled against the jailbird beaus and gave 'em hell for making the appeal at all.

Then he fined them $2,800 for wasting the court's time!

"I will under no circumstances permit a faggot marriage in this county," the judge told The NEWS, pointing out that Indiana law prohibits marriage between two men or two women.

"The petition is baseless, worthless and frivolous and full of weird and kinky contentions."

In spite of the setback, however, Shroyer, 26, and his Elizabethtown lover say they're not going to give up their fight to become man and husband.

They are planning to appeal the Hendricks Circuit Court judge's ruling.

"We're real close," Reed, an inmate at the Indiana Youth Center in Plainfield, told The NEWS.

"We have deep feelings for each other. We want to live together just like a married couple.

"A lot of the guys here at the prison support us and if we win, other couples will follow our lead. We're striving for what we feel are our rights."

Shroyer, who is serving a 30-year sentence for robbery, made national news when he and Reed filed their unusual petition.

But [illegible] says 'No' — fines them $2,800 for wasting court's time

When it hit Judge Boles' chambers.

"They alleged in the petition that they are deeply in love with each other and that they have a natural interest in each other and want to get married," said Judge Boles, adding, "That is about as off the wall as you can get.

"They simply have no right to marry under the law. There is no law in the whole county that would permit that.

"The foundation of our society is the family — and I'd really like to see it when these guys have kids."

Todd and Shroyer insist that Indiana law has a section which discusses how "any two persons" can obtain a marriage license and they say since they are persons, the law applies to them.

They feel Judge Boles' response was a harsh one, and are hoping a higher court will reverse his decision. If the appeals court supports their demands, the inmate lovers will be free to marry.

"There is a small section in the prison with two-man rooms and we could use that section," said Todd, who is serving 15 years for burglary.

"If we can get the marriage approved, we would get a court order to force prison officials to comply," he said.

"Then when we get out of prison we want to be left alone to be respectable citizens.

"We're not asking too much — we want to get on with our lives."

"They could have lived together on the outside, but they blew it," countered unsympathetic Judge Boles. "It's too late now."

PORTION of Judge Boles' decision rejecting the petition by two gay men who wanted to be allowed to get married.

Watch out Hulk Hogan!

Mongolian wild man has his eye on wrestling title!

By CHARLES TULLY

Watch out Hulk Hogan! A monster out of your worst nightmare is after your title!

A raving, 8-foot-tall Mongolian wild man who's being kept in a cage because he's "a threat to all forms of life on this planet" could soon hit the big time — as a hair-pulling, head-butting, eye-gouging professional wrestler!

The 500-pound hairy savage, known only as Khorkin, was captured last June in the forests of northern Mongolia after he invaded a trappers' camp and killed two horses with his bare hands.

"Khorkin is the most terrifying man who ever lived," said Lewis Lee, one of several Hong Kong businessmen who hope to sponsor the monster man's entry into the pro wrestling ring.

"The first thought is a cold-hearted killer. He can break a man's back without even trying. We could have a world champion in no time."

Mongolian officials know little about the man they call "Crazy Khorkin," but they say rumors had circulated for more than a year that a bloodthirsty giant roamed the remote mountains of the north.

"No one got a real look at him until he ran screaming into the camp being set up by five avid trappers deep in the forest," Lee told reporters.

"They said he killed two of their horses with blows to the head.

"The wild man apparently killed the animals for food, but the trappers didn't wait around to see. They turned and ran for their lives." A posse of nervous herdsmen and volunteers finally captured the shaggy-haired savage with an elaborate rope trap.

"It took 15 big men to subdue him and bring him back to civilization — and he left a couple of them in bad shape," Lee said. "They've kept him in a steel animal cage ever since because they had no building they thought could hold him. They say he's a threat to all forms of life."

The eager Hong Kong entrepreneur and a business partner paid a visit to the terrible titan after reading a newspaper account of his capture.

"He doesn't talk much, but he certainly understood us when we talked to him about getting out of the cage and becoming a wrestler," Lee said.

"We're excited about the possibilities. Now all we have to do is convince the people at the wrestling federations."

But one American promoter doubts that the wild man of Mongolia will ever butt heads with the likes of Hulk Hogan.

"An 8-foot lunatic doesn't exactly fit into my format," he said.

Nurse killed for laughing, cops say

Unemployed carpenter John Talmire flew into a rage and killed nurse Kerry Caldrick, cops said — because she laughed at him when he told her he'd been sexually abused.

Talmire met the 23-year-old nurse in a bar near Northport, Me., and agreed to have a drink in her apartment. The suspect allegedly used a caped crusader.

"I told her how I was sexually abused when I was younger," Talmire, 25, said in the statement. "I told her how I was raped by my sisters. And she laughed at me." When the nurse continued kept laughing. Terrified, Talmire pounded her and hit her with her purse, he said.

Then, he said, he grabbed a kitchen knife and stabbed her to death.

A judge ordered the suspect held on bail without bail for

Man claims his missing finger

A gum rolled police to let them know the finger found by children playing at a park belonged to him.

The authorities in Eugene, Ore., said ten 10-year-olds made the shocking discovery under the swings at a park and took the half-inch fingertip to their elementary school.

School officials reported the find to police, who had no idea what to make of it until they received a call from a man saying the finger was his.

The unidentified man said he was playing on the swings in the park when his finger got stuck in the chain and his fingertip was pinched off.

The man ran for medical assistance, leaving his finger behind.

Bored businessman robs 47 banks for the thrill!

A brilliant businessman who explained that he turned to a life of crime to fight boredom pleaded guilty to robbing 47 banks!

Canadian authorities say that even in his criminal career Edward Berger was an overachiever, holding up more banks than any other individual in the nation's history.

"He became hooked on the high and excitement of this kind of dangerous criminal endeavor," said Berger's lawyer, Mike Engel.

Engel described the 46-year-old Montreal bank robber, who faces up to 31 years in prison, as "an extraordinarily intelligent man" who had run several successful businesses.

Couple to wed each other — for the 4th time!

LOVEBIRDS Margaret and Albert Mitchell look their happy future as they prepare to marry each other for the fourth time.

THEIR first marriage in 1964 left plenty room after a whirlwind courtship when the two met while serving in the British Air Force. Divorced in 1975, they tied the knot again on Valentine's Day 1974, right photo, only to split up in 1979. Their third marriage in 1982 ended in divorce court in 1985.

By SUSAN JAMISON

Margaret and Albert Mitchell got married in 1964, divorced in 1975, married in 1978, divorced in 1979, married in 1982, divorced in 1985 — and now they're getting married again!

The lucky Blackpool, England, couple figure the fourth time might be lucky for them.

Anyway, they say, they can't live without one another, so why not try again?

"I know some people will think we're mad, but I have that this time it will work."

said the beaming bride, 37, on the eve of her wedding. "All hurt has really changed.

"They say love is lovelier the second time around. But I reckon nothing beats the fourth time. I'm the happiest woman in the world."

The on-again and off-again sweethearts first met while they were serving in the Royal Air Force 16 years ago.

Margaret and Albert fell in love and married.

But money worries plagued them and Albert's pummeling gambling led to trouble in 1975 the couple divorced.

Once apart, the pair grew closer to each other again.

Albert's constant visits to see the couple's two sons kept them in touch regularly and on Valentine's Day, 1974, they remarried.

This time the marriage lasted only three years.

Time passed and as did the hard feelings that had led Margaret and Albert to part.

"We both knew there was no one else for either of us."

Fourth time lucky for Mitchells said Albert. "We'd even been to the altar again in 1982.

Within three years love grew — again — especially when Margaret learned that her husband had been having an affair.

"It was the first time I had ever strayed and it was the worst mistake I ever made," said Albert.

"I thought I'd lost her forever."

They divorced again in 1985, but then Margaret heard Albert was in the hospital this year with cancer and showed up at his bedside to console him.

"When I saw Margaret walking through the door, I rediscovered the will to live," said Albert, who says he's now recovering.

"I've never stopped loving her and both of us have always been very close. So I asked her to share the rest of my life . . . again!"

Mt. Everest — what a dump!

Mt. Everest has been turned into a mountain of garbage by generations of careless climbers, according to members of an expedition trying to clean up the mess.

Efforts to clean up the world's tallest peak were launched by 47 members of a British expedition called the Survival Club. Members paid $1,500 each to travel to Nepal for a working vacation.

Paul Deegan, a spokesman for the group, said climbers may be here first, medicine and other supplies carried up the mountain to base camps where they leave rubbish to protect of paying to have it hauled back down.

"We may not be able to clean up the mountain completely because there is just too much rubbish for one group to deal with, but we have made a start and highlighted the problem so hopefully others will follow our example," Deegan said.

Lovesick lion attacks trainer for trying break up his romance!

By MICKEY McGUIRE

Foolhardy circus trainer Jerry Fernandino came within a whisker of losing his life when he tried to halt a spur-of-the-moment love match — between an amorous lion named Tarzan and his mate!

"Tarzan was intent on making love during a matinee for children," circus roustabout Roberto Segalli said. "To stop him, Jerry crashed his whip. But then Tarzan cracked Jerry.

"With one powerful blow Tarzan ripped open Jerry's arm and showed him who's the boss around here."

Segalli said the 24-year-old Fernandino was treated for a deep gash — but was otherwise unharmed.

Teen marries boyfriend who helped plot her dad's murder

A teenager who hired a classmate to kill her father has married her longtime boyfriend, who was also charged with helping plot the murder.

Cheryl Pierson, a former high school cheerleader from Long Beach, N.Y., was sentenced to six months in jail for hiring classmate Sean Pica to kill her father, Jayson Pierson, Sr.

Cheryl, who said her father had sexually abused her for years, was released from jail after serving 14 months.

Her boyfriend, Robert Curran, was sentenced to five years' probation for delivering a $400 payoff to Pica, who is now serving a prison sentence for pulling the trigger.

Cheryl and Curran were married in a Catholic ceremony attended by 100 people, including her sister brother Jason, the only family member to stand by her.

FREE JEWELRY OFFER SHOCKS NATION

Inside Story Revealed On Multi-Million Dollar Giveaway

NEW YORK, N.Y. — In one of the most exciting business decisions of the year a major New York jewelry firm is giving away millions of dollars worth of free jewelry from its inventory.

According to a company statement Peter Lee, there are no strings or catches and no purchase obligation." He stated firmly that this unprecedented giveaway was an "open and shutcase" move to win "new friends and customers" for the company's internationally acclaimed designer jewelry.

Competitor complaints

"Our competitors may be outraged by our giving away free what they charge good money for," Mr. Lee said, "but no matter how unhappy our business rivals may be with our giveaway — no matter how many complaints are received from competitors — the company will continue to give away free jewelry to all adults who request it."

Biggest surprise of all

But, the biggest shocker of all was the stunning revelation that the firm whose highly acclaimed jewelry is "eagerly sought after by millions of thrilled buyers" will continue to give away free merchandise. "Even though our nationally advertised designs have retail values to $30.00."

Offer open to U.S. Citizens only

The free jewelry, composed of cameo watches, pendants, pendis, earrings and other designer items is available to "adults over 18 American citizens enjoying occupied residence."

When asked how individual readers can benefit from this million dollar giveaway, Mr. Lee said "All they need do is write the company: Heart of Paris, 475 Madison Avenue, PO Box 1220, New York, NY 10150-1220 and ask for our free jewelry offer. He then added "what we do — mail them our free catalog and a certificate good for any item they like. It's theirs free. No strings, no catches. They can also use it to select other items." There is a nominal charge of $2.75 to help defray the mounting costs of shipping, handling and production.

"However," he added with a smile, "with retail values to $30.00 we have no complaints. It's one of the best offers around. And if any are found to displeased we'll gladly return that nominal sum and they can even keep whatever item they've received."

In concluding his remarks, Mr. Lee stated happily that no matter how much this giveaway upsets competitors Heart of Paris is also adding a few new surprises to each customer package. "We can say that our new patrons and keep it and our competitors will be devastated."

When asked for more details on where and when to write, Mr. Lee stated "please write to the company and me personally. And have them write to our New York Headquarters and Milan or Paris. Write to: Jewelry Giveaway Dept. 2556 Heart of Paris, 475 Madison

Angry dad pulls knife on doc in delivery room, say cops

By RAFI KLINGER

Most new dads pass out cigars when their baby is born — but Christopher Aitken pulled a knife and threatened to kill the doctor, say cops!

"It certainly was a bizarre reaction," said Corporal Wade Johnstone of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in North Vancouver, British Columbia.

"He was distressed that he wasn't called into the operating room to witness the birth of his child by cesarean section. When he heard the child already had been born, he threatened to kill the doctor."

Incredibly, Aitken pulled a pocketknife in the Lynn Care Hospital operating room and waved the weapon about, cursing, threats, and obscenities. The lunatics were called and took the unhappy dad into custody.

"He had been told he could attend by during the birth and when he walked into the delivery room, it had already been born," said Sgt. Stewart McCloud.

"He flipped out. I guess there's right ways to react and he reacted the wrong way and threatened the doctor."

Aitken was charged with possession of an offensive weapon and possession of a concealed weapon and released on his own recognizance.

His baby daughter and wife were reportedly fine.

Boy expelled for refusing to shower naked

An 11-year-old boy was kicked out of a city grammar school because his parents complained when he was forced to take a shower naked in front of the other boys.

The youngster, Basham Ahmad, said it was against his Muslim religion when headmaster John Petrunia told him to strip and shower with other boys after a gym class.

When the boy's parents objected, Petrunia expelled Basham from the private school in London, England, and said he didn't want him to come back.

Obsessed nurse has a real-life fatal attraction for her patient

In a bizarre real-life case that mirrored the hit movie Fatal Attraction, a nurse fell madly in love with her patient and endangered him and his wife for 18 months, nearly driving them bankers.

The chilling case of obsession began when David Crowther was admitted to a Hull, England, hospital after being seriously injured in a terrible car crash. His nurse Susan Dyer fell for him.

When he rejected her advances, she began a nightmarish campaign to wreck his happy homelife with wife Mandee.

Mandee got phone calls from someone called "Carol" who claimed she had a love child by Crowther.

Fire engines were sent to the Crowthers' address on false alarm calls.

A social worker went to investigate allegations that the Crowthers' child was being neglected.

The Crowthers had to cut short a vacation in Spain because of a fake message that a relative had become ill back home.

Finally, the 33-year-old love-sick nurse was nabbed trying to cancel travel plans booked by the Crowthers. Miss Dyer admitted to authorities that she forged the cancellation slip for the trip.

Judge sentenced Miss Dyer to two years' probation on condition she seek psychiatric help. She has also been suspended from her job.

Witches in a stew!

By LAUREL ROWE

A coven of bewildered witches has gone out of business in France — because they couldn't find one single virgin to sacrifice to Satan.

"Virgins around here are about as rare as beauty spots on a hog's butt," grumbled Janet Barkley, a disgruntled American member of the now-defunct coven.

"They're not exactly thick on the ground."

The disbanded witches insist they never really killed any sweet young things during their supernatural rituals in the woods outside Bordeaux.

"Our sacrifices were just symbolic and no one actually shed any blood," said suave Francine Galli.

"But they were an essential part of our worship service, and without them we wouldn't really get off. We had to throw up our hands and resign it quits."

Bewildered Fran said a virgin girl is more a state of mind than a physical condition.

Barkley, originally from Kansas City, Mo., said virtual virgins are hard to find in France.

"We had to do a ritual abortion because a pregnant chick is no good at the moaning chow — and we found out later that some of them weren't virtual virgins either.

"Nowadays [whole] world is full of [illegible] and there are virgins under every park," the disgusted devil worshipper told reporters.

Hanky-panky preacher rams housewife into love affair!

By JACK ALEXANDER

When her preacher said she could get closer to God by having a "spiritual connection" with him, Carol Edwards said she did not realize he would seduce her.

The Tacoma, Wash., housewife confessed a year ago that her pastor coerced her into a sexual relationship in 1985 that destroyed her 19-year marriage. Preacher Jack McDonald was ordered by the Pierce County Superior Court sum to pay her $130,000 for pain and suffering.

"I just didn't want any other woman to ever have to go through what I went through," said Miss Edwards, who contended she would have been happy with a $1 award. "If I can save one woman from ever going through it, then that's all I cared about."

McDonald was pastor of an independent Pentecostal church in Tacoma when he told members could get closer to God by forming a spiritual connection with someone of the opposite sex, other than spouses, Miss Edwards testified.

Members could achieve the "spiritual connection," she said, by dancing together at church services, gazing into each other's eyes and spending time together. Miss Edwards claimed her two-month spiritual encounters with the preacher developed into a sexual affair. And when she broke off the romantic relationship, McDonald banished her from the church she helped found.

The jury originally awarded $500,000 damages, but reduced the amount to $130,000, deciding Miss Edwards was partly to blame for what happened.

Lovesick man strangled by electric car window

By [redacted]

A heartbroken youth ended his misery by sticking his head and the shoulders of his parked car and pushing the "up" button, until the glass pane strangled the life out of him.

Police in Hainesfield, Richland, believe 20-year-old Lawrence Richard Nixon ended his life because of girl troubles.

"An accident is highly unlikely," said a police spokesman. "It seems he was having difficulties with a girlfriend."

A neighbor found the gruesome youth's body with his head sticking through the half-closed window of his car which was parked in his parents' driveway. His neck was wedged in a death grip between the glass and the door frame.

The popular young man worked as a bartender at the Robin Hood Inn across the road from his parents' house. Edward Trumbull, who worked with Richard, was perplexed by the death.

"It's very odd because Richard didn't seem to be down about anything," he said.

"I simply can't understand it."

Meanwhile, a spokesman for the company that made the car Richard owned insisted that the death could not have been an accident or due to a defect.

"Our understanding is that this was a deliberate act," said the spokesman cautiously.

"The window control button is on the door armrest and the youngster must have kept his finger firmly on it."

Heartbroken mom's anguished cry . . .

Bungling bureaucrats made my son a killer!

Killer kids: Jason became the youngest person ever convicted of first-degree murder in a Wisconsin court

ANGRY mom Patricia Haberman says boy was not a "killer" too.

By SUSAN JIMISON

"Bungling bureaucrats turned my son into a killer!"

That's the chilling charge leveled by anguished mom Patricia Haberman, whose teenage son Jason stabbed a defenseless old lady to death.

"When social workers finally agreed to get [illegible] late," the Appleton, Wis., mom told The NEWS. "He committed the murder three days before he was scheduled to go into an institution. He was emotionally disturbed for five years before the crime.

"I tried. I called authorities. I did everything I could. I tried to get him put away, but they were still recommending home counseling. They were still just slapping his wrists even though his crimes were getting worse."

Fat brat stabs 80-year-old woman to death during burglary

Mrs. Haberman's 14-year-old son became the youngest person in Wisconsin to be convicted of first-degree murder.

But it didn't have to be that way if social workers had taken stronger measures during the years he showed signs of emotional problems, the woman said.

"When he was 10 or 11 he started damaging other people's property, stealing, vandalism, that sort of thing," she said. "We went to counselors and social workers and they tried to punish him by taking things away from him. But he rebelled.

"Then he started running away. He ripped all the wallpaper off the walls in his room. I wanted them to do something then, but they said they couldn't do anything and had to wait until he had done something worse."

Finally, on Sept. 30, 1987, Jason participated in a burglary at the home of Grace Brown, 80. He helped stab the elderly woman to death when she discovered Jason and his accomplice in her house.

Although Jason was only 14, the crime was so serious that he was tried as an adult and given a life sentence for first-degree murder.

"If they had done something sooner this wouldn't have happened," said Mrs. Haberman, a divorced 33-year-old nurse's aide who hopes to help other kids.

"Jason was a victim, too," the angry mom said. "Society should have done something."

Corn farmer Ken Miller and his son Rick were quick to return a slightly mangled suitcase when it fell into one of their fields — from 22,000 feet!

The bag belonging to Tom Piper was sucked from a cowboy airplane after a window blew out over Indiana. The plane carrying Piper and other executives of Borg-Warner Automotive Inc., managed to land safely.

The company bigwig said he was unsure where he saw the bag fly through the window when he'd live to tell the tale.

But once he was safely on the ground, he was glad to get

Bizarre new funeral fad lets you go in style — as a mummy!

By SUSAN HAMSON

Mummy's the word now in the burial business.

People are lining up to order a new service in which their earthly remains are preserved for all eternity just like ancient Egyptians were — as mummies!

You may not need the riches of King Tut but the funeral fad is costly, according to mummy makers Summum Bonum of Salt Lake City, Utah, ranging in price from half a million dollars down to $32,000. But it's worth it if you want your descendants to have something of the real you to remember you by.

"It's an option at the top end, sort of like a Rolls-Royce," explained Claude Nowell, a spokesman for Summum Bonum. "To use airplane terminology, it's like going first class instead of coach.

"Everybody's going the same place, but some people want to go in style."

The remarkable process starts out much like the process ancient Egyptians used to preserve their dead.

The body of the deceased is soaked in a mixture of water, herbs and chemical preservatives. Then coated with scented oils. Next, the corpse is carefully wrapped in a cocoon of linen, fiberglass polyethylene and plaster before it is placed in a sarcophagus.

Rich folks can opt for special effects, like gold overlays or surrounds in jewels or bronze, body-shaped caskets.

"We've had no noticeable response to the burial procedure," Nowell told The Sun. "Here then 15,000 people have written us wanting information on mummification.

"I think the appeal is that with mummification, something stays behind that speaks of their existence. Later generations can have a tie to their ancestors. The body is there. The feeling of the person is there."

Although the deluxe mummy treatment is relatively new, already Summum Bonum has over 100 would-be mummies signed up for the process. And a mortuary school in Boca Raton, Fla., is considering teaching a course in the burial technique as soon as next year.

Nowell hopes the mummy industry will be so successful that his company will eventually have a string of franchises across America.

"Things are going really well in this business already," he said. "We expect a big trend toward mummification over the next few years."

TUTANKHAMUN BONUM bears no danger, like the one at the right, an ancient Egyptian styles like the 3,000-year-old casket for Lady Tashat, above.

AT EASE

Sophia Loren's exposure rubs a break from her busy schedule. The pretty California lass has appeared on TV's "Star Search" and "MacGyver."

Clothes-minded cops pull the plug on nude car wash

Warren Colmus had a great idea he figured could earn him plenty of bills — a car wash with nude gals scrubbing and sudsing while customers watched.

Unfortunately, cops in Jacksonville, Fla., didn't notice in Colmus a hygeyre business and closed the place down declaring that it violated the law.

Colmus's Only Nude Car Wash in the Nation cost $10 per wash and featured five nude dancers-turned car washers. It operated every week on Saturdays next to the topless dancing club he owns.

Officials shut down the skin-scrub operation on the premise that it represented a breach of the peace and violated public nudity laws.

Surrogate who kept twins tells couple: Pay [redacted] child support!

by PETE COOKE

A surrogate mom who refused to give up her newborn twins is now suing the childless couple who hired her — demanding they pay child support!

British officials say 33-year-old Anne Price was paid $10,200 to bear a child for a wealthy veterinary surgeon and his wife, but changed her mind after giving birth to a son and daughter in 1986.

The mother and the heartbroken couple squared off in a London courtroom last year in battle for custody of the twins and Miss Price was declared the winner.

The anguished London couple thought that was the end of their nightmarish arrangement, but they were wrong.

Miss Price is going back to court. She now is demanding the veterinarian and his wife pay child support until her twins reach the age of 16.

"I've been through hell for the twins," Miss Price said after filing the latest legal action.

The surrogate mother, who lives in Sheffield, said public sentiment may be against her, but she doesn't care.

"I'm not interested in what other people think," she told The NEWS.

A hearing on Miss Price's demand for child support has been scheduled for January.

Easy payment plan

David Tom was fined $1 for breaking a window during a scuffle in a bar — and the judge gave him 1,000 years to pay off the fine!

At that rate, he has to pay only 10 cents every century.

The Judge in Whitehorse, Canada, noted that Tom had already paid $12 to fix the window and had apologized.

The inside story on Custer's brother, Nero's dad & the birth of the billboard

TRIVIA

By KARL KLIMMER

What big American city had to be moved from sinking out of sight? Which president was a leader in women's rights? What's the real story behind Captain Queeg?

The surprising answers to these questions will amaze you and your friends. Here's a list of little-known facts that will tantalize even the most knowledgeable trivia buffs.

● Did you know that city dogs on the average live slightly longer than country dogs? That is because small dogs generally live longer than larger ones, and city dogs tend to be the smaller breeds.

● Captain Queeg, the hostile ship commander played by Humphrey Bogart in The Caine Mutiny, is an amalgam of bits of character from several men. But Herman Wouk, who wrote the novel the movie was based on, says there was no Captain Queeg during World War II. Wouk says there was a Captain Pierre Landais who commanded the American ship Alliance during the Revolutionary War. This sailor threw fits and was so mean to his crew that they shot Captain Landais cracked up during the court martial.

● The first outdoor advertising sign (the blight of today's highways) was set up in 1835 in Wheeling, W. Va. The billboard read: "Chew Mail Pouch Tobacco."

● The founding fathers of Chicago made a big blunder when creating a site to build the famed Windy City. They built it on mud and in the 1850s the city started to sink. From 1856 to 1873 workers jacked up the buildings and began to restore foundations and improved drainage to firm up the ground. This huge undertaking, "The Raising of Chicago," was considered one of the wonders of the 19th century.

● Two-fisted President Teddy Roosevelt was a leader of women's rights in his day. He was the first man to accept a gal into the all-male Harvard Porcellian Club. He also wrote his inner pages on giving women equal rights.

● That cruel Roman emperor Nero was fiddling his fiddle while the city burned. But Nero was just a little whippersnapper next to his dad, who tried to run down kids in the street when he drove his chariot.

● Gen. George Armstrong Custer was a showoff and a braggart, but the real military hero in his family was his young brother Thomas Ward Custer. Tom was the first American soldier to win two Congressional Medals of Honor.

HUMPHREY Bogart overindulgs over nuts on the flattened Captain Queeg in "The Caine Mutiny."

HOW TO COLLECT
Social Security
At Any Age

Cash-In on Government Give-Away Programs

(Special) A new book written by a former Federal investigator tells how every American can collect their share of the $250 billion that will be handed out this year by Uncle Sam. The book explains how to collect: social security before retirement, small business loans, income supplements, education benefits, farm loans, unemployment, job training, even welfare and food stamps. Here are just a few facts covered:

- How 37 million Americans, those falling around age 28, collect annuities and life security checks.
- How to make the entire family eligible for social security, even your youngest child.
- How you may be cheating yourself out of social security benefits.
- How almost 3 million children get monthly social security checks.
- How to qualify for disability payments (over 2.5 million people collecting but thousands more eligible).
- How an aunt and self collect social security.
- How to find out how much you have paid into Social Security.
- How to know when to quit work and start collecting social security.
- How to get a lump sum payment.
- How to get a $500,000 loan to start your own business (it's simple and the bank tells you exactly how to do it).
- How to collect a $250,000 loan to buy a farm or ranch, including livestock and equipment.
- How to collect a $27,000 loan for a mobile home, including lot.
- How to collect a $17,000 loan for home improvements.
- How an ex-con earns $600 a month to attend college. (Hint: school is an on-the-job training.)
- How to get free medical coverage, including eye glasses and dental care.
- How to get a good-paying Federal job.
- How to collect hundreds of dollars a month to pay your apartment rent, including utilities.
- How to get up to a $500,000 small business loan even if you are poor and unemployed.
- How to obtain thousands of dollars in free Federal services.

With the help of this book, many families are now leading a more comfortable existence.

Although the book "How To Collect Big Dollars From Uncle Sam" could mean thousands of dollars to you, it is being offered at only $12.95 (plus $1 post. & hdlg.).

Order from: R. Emil Neumann, 349 South Highway 101, Dept. WS-14, Solana Beach, CA 92075. You can return the book within 30 days if not satisfied and receive a full refund.

By Countess Sophia Saheb

ARIES

Mar. 21-Apr. 19

Hold your temper this week! People will have a lot of trouble understanding what you really mean — so try not to deal out any words that might be misunderstood.

Same thing goes when it comes to money matters. Keep your checkbook closed except for necessities. Caution at this time will mean prosperity in a few weeks.

If you are shopping for clothing as a holiday gift for a very close friend, shy away from the color green.

TAURUS

Apr. 20-May 20

Abundant Lady Luck comes a-knocking on your door this week and you've got to let her in. A friend has some sound advice that could put you and your family on the road to a better tomorrow. Listen up, and your faithfulness aside and swing into action pronto. Remember, if you snooze you lose.

Someone you love is crying out for help. Support them all you can, even if the problems seem trivial.

Watch out for trouble in certain evidence.

GEMINI

May 21-June 20

Change is in the wind and you better get ready for it. Look for a dramatic improvement in your love life and don't be surprised if your financial situation takes a sudden turn for the better.

The telephone plays a key role this week. Late night calls are likely to be the most important. Distant relatives are almost sure to call you with stunning news.

Chances are you've been wanting to get hurt in the development of your hostile. Take it easy for a change.

CANCER

June 21-July 22

You've been drifting along in neutral and the strategy in getting your partners down. If you want to achieve your goals, you'll have to rock the boat. Be diverse in disagreeable and tell them what you have in mind.

Financially, you're in good shape — so sky and splurge a little! Round up your versatile and gain and treat yourself to a big night on the town.

Relatives can help you with an emotional problem. Open up your heart to them.

LEO

July 23-Aug. 22

You are destroying your mind and body with your ridiculous lifestyle. Review your habits of yourself before it's too late. You're smarter than you're acting.

It's past time to get away for a weekend, either by yourself or with a friend. Don't tell anyone where you are and don't answer the telephone. Just have fun.

You've uncovered a piece of jewelry that might be worth more than you think. It might not be a bad idea to have it appraised.

VIRGO

Aug. 23-Sept. 22

Take special pains to keep dry this week. Dampness could cause danger unless you're careful. The most perilous time, of course, is showering and walking in the rain.

You're associating with shady people and either these "friends" can wound with sleazy habits and you turn into shame. Better start using your brains for a change.

The boss thinks you're great, doing a good job and grossly underpaid. Be ready for more responsibility, better hours and a big raise.

LIBRA

Sept. 23-Oct. 22

Uh, oh! There's trouble in paradise. A lady you thought you could trust starts taking gratitude as you behind your back this week and she could put a serious crimp in your love life. Try to root out the source of the problem and set the record straight.

If you don't believe in ghosts now, you may change your mind before the week is out. Check the closets.

A turn of events on a trip inland could have a profound effect on your life.

SCORPIO

Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Do you thought your nights of exciting love were over, eh? Well, get ready to remember! A young thing is tired of playing around and is about to put a little zing back in your life!

A troublesome enemy who has made your life a daily hell is about to get it in the neck, proving once again that time wounds all heels. Be patient!

Caution is the key to success this week.

Don't spend, travel — or make promises you can't keep.

SAGITTARIUS

Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Your deep sense of loyalty to another is smothering you with chance for success. Stop kicking a lover. It's time for you to think of yourself.

Someone close to you is upset but distant to action will relay exciting news that will change the course of your life. Don't be timid.

Cool the night life this week. A tarnished wealth your time and energy is about to have you over and you'll need all the vitality you can muster.

CAPRICORN

Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Health problems are heading your way — but don't fret. What seems serious at first will turn out to be only a minor ailment and you'll be on good as new in a few days.

Read the fine print two or three times before you sign anything. Someone may be trying to put something over on you that could hurt your bank account. Be careful.

But when it comes to matters of the heart — now is the time to gamble. Someone has their eye on you.

Dear Countess Saheb: My sweetheart and I are getting married January 14. He's an Aquarius and I'm a Virgo. I love him very much, but I worry about our happiness. What's our chances? — R.A.L., Milwaukee, Wis.

Dear R.A.L. The good news is that you and your spouse-to-be will likely have a long and happy union. The bad news is that January 14 is not a good day for you. I suggest an early march in February for

AQUARIUS

Jan. 20-Feb. 18

This week is full of bizarre happenings for you, but very little danger. A stranger who recently arrived in your town by bus and wearing white socks will ask you for money.

Your boss will call you in his office and criticize your work for no reason. He'll apologize later. A meal at a restaurant will be ruined for you by a clumsy waitress.

Have patience and keep control of your tempers during this very trying period.

PISCES

Feb. 19-Mar. 20

A close friend will want to bother and try luring you into a squabble. Stay cool.

That great romance that you've been looking around for a while might become a reality. Someone you know will offer to help back you.

Tight pants could pose a danger to you. Don't wear them this week and avoid friends and strangers who are wearing that type of clothing.

You'll shine at work and get a de-

'Grand prize couple' goes bust!

Family spends itself bankrupt after sweepstakes letter says they (may) win big

HARDWORKING couple Dale and Kathy Work may have been Pre-Approved into bankruptcy, but are determined to see things through.

By JACK ALEXANDER

A small town couple misread the fine print in one of millions of sweepstakes letters mailed across the U.S. and spent money they thought they'd won — and now they're bankrupt.

Kathy and Dale Work rushed out and bought a car, truck, furniture and other luxuries thinking the $3 million sweepstakes jackpot was theirs and then learned they hadn't won a dime.

Now, six months later, they are $69,100 in debt and their credit is ruined.

"I feel like a jerkass all across the world," Kathy told The NEWS last April. "It appears like we're just a couple of country hicks, I guess."

Their financial nightmare began in January of that year when the Stoney Ridge, Ohio housewife received a letter from the United States Publishing Exchange of Los Angeles. "We are pleased to inform you that you have been designated to receive certified bank checks from the Exchange for $1,000,000 ... your winnings in our multi-million dollar sweepstakes. WHEN YOU are the grand prize winner," it read.

Weeks later she received another letter saying her winnings stood at $2,000,000. Then she received two checks totaling that amount and was asked to endorse them back to the company along with her Social Security and bank account numbers.

Unfortunately, she didn't carefully read the fine print in a letter that accompanied the checks, just two of millions mailed nationwide.

The notation read:

"Certified bank check for this amount will be drawn and issued to Kathy Work UPON VERIFICATION that she had been selected the grand prize winner."

Convinced their dreams of the good life had come true, the couple borrowed from area banks and bought luxuries they could never before afford.

And now their dreams of wealth have turned into the harsh reality of bankruptcy court. They lost the car, the truck, the washer-dryer, a stereo and TV set. They owe $61,000 in bank loans.

"We dug ourselves a hole and we'll have to crawl out of it," said Kathy. "But we have each other. We'll survive."

Armless rider gets a leg up!

High-flying Philippa Perry is a champion horsewoman who can saddle her own steed and guide him through a cross-country fixture with the greatest of ease — even though she was born with no arms!

Skilful Philippa, a victim of thalidomide, handles the reins with her feet as well as most horsemen do with their hands — and she has dozens of prize wins chalked up proving it.

But the Essex, England rider's favourite sport is flying over treacherous jumps on Britain's toughest courses.

"I've fallen off lots of times," she says. "One of the reasons I enjoy foxhunting is the risk involved. The adrenalline rushes when you go over a really big jump."

Show-off dies in barroom hanging stunt when his safety harness fails

Safe and sound in her new home, lucky dog Tilly's not about to wander into car engines again!

Family rescues wayward pup caught in car's engine!

By DICK DONOVAN

Randolph and Linda Starks hadn't planned on shelling out $147 for a mongrel pooch. But that's the way it added up — when an abandoned mutt got stuck in their car's engine!

It cost the Louisville, Ky., father of three a $20 towing fee, $67 in veterinary charges and $60 to get the wayward 10-week-old puppy extricated from the engine.

The day began innocently enough. The couple had taken their children — Oliver, 6, Elizabeth, 5, and Gabriel, 7 months — for a drive in the country.

Eventually, the family stopped to walk in a woods.

"We saw the puppy when we got out of the car," Mrs. Starks told The NEWS. "We called to it, but it ran into the woods and hid.

"When we got back to the car, my husband was about to turn the ignition when we heard a yelp.

"We got out to see where it was coming from, but we couldn't find the pup.

"Finally, my husband opened the hood and there she was wedged in around the exhaust system. He worked for an hour to get her out, but she was really stuck."

Though he knew it would make his car undrivable, Starks cut a steering line to free the little puppy's head.

With the temperature hovering in the mid-30s, Starks sped to a nearby house and called for a tow truck.

The car was towed to a service station where a mechanic worked for an hour to lift the engine and free the puppy.

Starks rushed the pup to an all-night animal hospital. Luckily, the tiny critter had come through her seven-hour ordeal in good shape.

The Starks took the puppy home, named her Tilly and made her one of the family.

Whines jailed cowboy who killed a tot with a snake!

By PETE COOKE

A cowboy convicted of killing a little girl explained that he dropped a deadly 4-foot rattlesnake around the toddler's neck because, "I thought it would be a good experience for her."

Just nine months after he was convicted of manslaughter Darrell Wennendorf made a bizarre bid for freedom by telling the Utah Board of Pardons he didn't think rattlers were "as dangerous as people thought."

Wennendorf had been sentenced to a term of 1 to 15 years in the death of 3-year-old Stevie Kirkwood, who died three hours after a Great Basin rattlesnake sank its fangs into her shoulder.

At the time of the tragedy Wennendorf, 24, was a boarder in the home of Stevie's mother, Jeri Ann Kirkwood of La Verkin, Utah.

According to testimony at Wennendorf's trial, he found the rattler beside a road and took it back to the Kirkwood home, where he spent the afternoon drinking tequila and playing with the snake.

Later Wennendorf took the rattlesnake inside and draped it around the girl.

"I'd been playing with it for about three hours and it showed no signs of aggression," Wennendorf explained to the Board of Pardons at a recent hearing.

He said he wanted Stevie to pet the snake because, "She was good with animals. I thought it would be a good experience for her. Obviously, I was wrong, but I believed rattlesnakes are just not as dangerous as everyone thought."

When Board of Pardons chairman Victoria Palacios told Wennendorf that Stevie's mother is still grieving over her daughter's death, he said, "This ain't no picnic for me," and started sobbing.

Unmoved, the board turned down Wennendorf's request for parole.

Wennendorf is still facing charges in Arizona for allegedly leaving his own two children, ages 3 and 5, locked in a vehicle with a loaded .22-caliber handgun for hours.

Paul Boyden, a member of the Utah Board of Pardons, said Wennendorf's "total unawareness of danger to children is frightening."

BEAUTIFUL fashion model Susan Rogers, 36, was happy with a silicone implant that gave her a bigger bust — until two of her breasts exploded.

KA-BOOB!

Woman's breast explodes!

By CLIFF SMITH

Sexy model Susan Rogers thought her newly enlarged chest was the answer to her dreams — till one of her breasts exploded like a bomb!

Green-eyed Susan's nightmare took place shortly after surgeons inserted silicone implants to boost her 36-inch bust.

"I was in bed asleep when my right breast just burst open," the New Brighton, England, woman told reporters. "I woke up screaming in horror.

"There was blood and fluid everywhere. The mattress was soaking with it."

Rushed to Essex [illegible] where a surgeon told her: "Your silicone implant is tearing its way out of you."

Doctors quickly removed the implant — leaving Susan's eye-catching bust more than a little lopsided.

"It was so humiliating," she fumed. "I had to walk around looking like that for weeks before a surgeon could put in a fresh implant. And now that they've done it, my breasts are still lopsided."

The embarrassed belle insisted that her 36-24-36 physique wasn't striking enough for her modeling career, so she took out a $2,500 bank loan to pay surgeons to beef up her bust.

Three weeks later, the breast blew up as she slept. "I guess there's some truth in the old saying that you can have too much of a good thing," she said with a wry [illegible]

Wife feeds hubby rat poison dinner!

Devoted husband James Crittenden begged a judge to free his wife so she could come home to care for him — even though she admitted trying to kill him with rat poison!

By PETE COOKE

The [illegible]-strapping lumberjack, who now uses leg braces and canes to walk, got his wish and hobbled out of court in Ozark, Ala., with his wife, Flora.

"She admitted she did it, but he said he didn't believe it," prosecutor Hank Nichols told The [illegible]. "He was so doggone devoted to her at the sentencing hearing that the judge let her go."

Nichols said Mrs. Crittenden took out a $50,000 life insurance policy on her husband several years ago and then began serving his food and drinking water with rat poison.

The prosecutor said, "The arsenic affected his central nervous system to the point where he wears braces on his legs and walks with the aid of canes."

Nichols said an investigation was launched when the 46-year-old lumberjack went to the hospital for a checkup and doctors discovered high levels of arsenic in his system.

Mrs. Crittenden, 47, was arrested on charges of attempted murder, but was later allowed to plead guilty to a charge of second-degree assault.

After Crittenden pleaded for his wife's release, Judge Charles Woods placed her on probation and sent her home to [illegible]

MOON BASE SENDS SOS TO EARTH!

By RAGAN DUNN

'Help! We've been hit by a meteor,' says coded message

A Swiss radio astronomer claims to have received an SOS from an alien base on the moon!

Dr. Alain Kiefer said the message was garbled and lasted less than a minute but made the extraterrestrials' fire situation perfectly clear.

According to the transmission received on October 16, the base was hit by a fist-sized meteor that cracked a protective shell — compromising its artificial atmosphere.

"If the extraterrestrials' comrades haven't gotten to them by now they've probably died," the expert told reporters in Geneva.

"I have notified the governments of the Soviet Union and United States," he continued. "And I strongly suggest that they send a probe or manned flight to the moon to investigate right away."

Soviet and American officials confirmed that they had been contacted by Dr. Kiefer but they refused to say what, if anything, their governments plan to do.

Meanwhile, the expert's report found itself at the center of a controversy among space scientists, some of whom suggested that the SOS might have originated on Earth.

"If a human prankster sent the message he must be a genius," said Dr. Kiefer.

"The message was transmitted in a mathematical code that took a pair of computers two weeks to decipher.

"There was no mention of where the aliens came from or why they need a base on the moon. But it would seem to me that they came to our solar system from a great distance.

"And they must have more than a passing interest in our planet or they wouldn't have established a base of operations on the moon."

Swiss UFO researcher Georg Kohlinger seconded Dr. Kiefer's call for a rescue mission.

He called the implications of the alien SOS "staggering" — and demanded immediate public statements from the U.S. and U.S.S.R.

Hired killer guns down surgeon who botched appendix operation!

A small-town doctor who botched surgery on a mobster's daughter paid the ultimate price when he was gunned down in his home by a mafia hit man.

Dr. Pietro Fiori was shot twice in the face and two more times in the stomach as he returned home from a hospital in Sorel, Italy.

"As Dr. Fiori lay dying on his living room floor, the killer stomped on his

Giuseppe Lazzara. "Every finger was broken. Butchered might be a better description."

Cops believe Fiori, 48, was marked for death because he muffed a routine appendectomy on the 4-year-old daughter of Mafia boss Antonio Giampaolo.

Tiny Maria Giampaolo suffered severe internal bleeding and lapsed into a coma after surgery. She died seven hours later.

She had been taken to the hospital was led to believe the operation was routine," said Inspector Lazzara.

Dr. Fiori was a close friend of the little girl's father, Antonio Giampaolo, who is the Mafia boss in southern Italy.

"He was the family's physician and even attended little Maria's christening," said Inspector Lazzara.

Gangland assassin Carlo Livori, an ex-con who served time in prison for murder, was picked up as suspicion of murder in the shooting.
